

CRIMINAL CODE OF GEORGIA

GENERAL PART

SECTION ONE. CRIMINAL LAW

CHAPTER I. CRIMINAL LEGISLATION OF GEORGIA

Article 1. Criminal Legislation of Georgia and Its Purpose

1. The Criminal Code of Georgia establishes the basis of criminal liability, determining as to which particular action is criminal and meting out relevant punishment or other punitive measure.
2. This Code is compatible with the Constitution of Georgia, universally recognized principles and standards of international law.
3. The present Code is targeted at preventing crime and protecting law and order.

CHAPTER II. SCOPE OF APPLICATION OF CRIMINAL LAW

Article 2. Applicability of Criminal Law in Time

1. The criminality and punishability of the action shall be determined under the criminal law, which was applicable at the time of committing this action.
2. The time of committing a crime shall be the time when the perpetrator or accomplice acted or must have acted irrespective of when the result is produced.

Article 3. Retroactivity of Criminal Law

1. The criminal law which nullifies criminality of the action, improves the condition of the offender shall be retroactive. The criminal law, which lays down the criminality of the action, toughens punishment or otherwise aggravates the condition of the offender, shall in no way be retroactive.
2. If a new criminal law commutes the sentence for the action wherefore the convict is serving it, this sentence must be shortened to the extent permitted by the new criminal law.
3. If, from the perpetration of the crime to conviction, the criminal law was changed several times, the most lenient law shall be applied.
4. Coercive measure of educative effect and coercive measure of medical nature shall be applied only under the law, which is applicable during the court settlement of the case.

Article 4. Applicability of Criminal Law toward Crime Committed on the Territory of Georgia

1. The one who has perpetrated a crime on the territory of Georgia shall bear criminal liability as hereunder provided.
2. The crime shall be deemed perpetrated on the territory of Georgia if it began, continued, terminated or ended on the territory of Georgia. This code shall also be applied to the crimes committed on the continental shelf of Georgia and in the Special Economic Zone.
3. The one who has perpetrated a crime on the vessel authorized to use the national flag or identification mark of Georgia or against such vessel, shall bear criminal liability under this Code unless otherwise prescribed by the International Treaty of Georgia.
4. If the diplomatic representative of a foreign country as well as the person enjoying diplomatic immunity has committed a crime on the territory of Georgia, the question of their criminal liability shall be settled in manner and to the extent permitted by the international law.

Article 5. Criminal Liability for Crime Perpetrated Abroad

1. The citizen of Georgia as well as the person permanently residing in Georgia without having citizenship has committed the action under this Code which is regarded as crime under the legislation of the state in which it was committed, shall bear criminal liability under this Code if they have not been convicted in another state.
2. The citizen of Georgia as well as the person permanently residing in Georgia without having citizenship has committed the action under this Code which is not regarded as crime under the legislation of the state in which it was committed, shall bear criminal liability under this Code if it is a grave or especially grave offense in directed against the interests of Georgia or if the criminal liability for this offense is provided by the International Treaty of Georgia.
3. The citizen of a foreign state as well as the person not permanently residing in Georgia without having citizenship who has committed the action under this Code shall bear criminal liability under this Code if it is a grave or especially grave offense directed against the interests of Georgia or if the criminal liability for this offense is provided by the International Treaty of Georgia if they have not been convicted in another state.

Article 6. Extradition of Criminal

1. The citizen of Georgia as well as the person permanently residing in Georgia without having citizenship shall in no way be extradited to the other state for criminal prosecution or for serving a sentence unless otherwise determined by the International Treaty of Georgia.
2. The citizen of a foreign state as well as the person having no citizenship and being on the territory of Georgia who has committed a crime may be extradited to another state for criminal prosecution or for serving a sentence in manner and to the extent determined by the International Treaty of Georgia.
3. It shall be inadmissible to extradite the person under asylum who has committed a crime and who is being persecuted for political creed or the person who has committed the action not regarded as crime under the legislation of Georgia or for this crime capital punishment is prescribed in the state seeking extradition. The question of criminal liability of such persons shall be settled in manner and to the extent permitted by the international law.

SECTION TWO. CRIME

CHAPTER III. BASIS FOR CRIMINAL LIABILITY, CRIME CATEGORIES

Article 7. Basis for Criminal Legislation

1. The basis for the criminal responsibility shall be a crime, i.e. the illegal and disorderly actions provided under thus Code.
2. Crime shall not be the action that, although formally carrying the signs of crime, has not produced, for minor importance, the prejudice which would necessitate the criminal liability of its perpetrator, or has not created the threat of such prejudice.

Article 8. Casual Relationship

1. If under the relevant article hereof the crime is deemed as ended only in case the action has given rise to illegal result or has created a specific threat of producing such result, it shall be necessary to establish a casual relationship between the action and the result or threat.
2. Casual relationship exists if the action constituted a sine qua non for the illegal result or specific threat provided under the relevant article hereof without which this time such result would not have been produced or such threat would not have been created.
3. Inaction shall be deemed as sine qua non for producing the illegal result or for creating specific threat provided under the relevant article hereof in case the person was assigned special legal obligation of the action, had possibility for such action and the result would have been forestalled by obligatory and possible action.

Article 9. Crime of Aforethought

1. Crime of aforethought shall be the action that is perpetrated with direct or indirect intention.
2. The action shall be perpetrated with direct intention if the wrongdoer was aware of the illegitimacy of his/her action, foresaw the possibility for the arrival of the illegal consequence and wished to have this consequence, or foresaw the inevitability of the realization of such consequence.
3. The action shall be perpetrated with indirect intention if the wrongdoer was aware of the illegitimacy of his/her action, foresaw the possibility for the arrival of the illegal consequence, did not wish to have this consequence but deliberately allowed for or was negligent to deal with the arrival of such consequence.

Article 10. Crime of Negligence

1. The action shall be deemed to be crime of negligence if it is perpetrated through presumption or negligence.
2. The action shall be perpetrated through presumption if the person was aware of the action forbidden under the norms of foreseeing, foresaw the possibility for the illegal consequence but had unfounded hope that he/she would avoid this consequence.
3. The action is committed through negligence if the person was aware of the action forbidden under the norms of foreseeing, did not foresee the possibility for the illegal consequence though he/she was obliged to and could foresee it.
4. The action committed by negligence shall be deemed to be offence only in case it is referred to in the relevant article of this Code.

Article 11. Liability for Crime of Aforethought with Attendant Consequence

1. If criminal law provides for the augment of punishment for the arrival of the attendant consequence that fell out of the criminal's purpose, such augment shall be permitted only in case a person carried out this consequence through negligence. Such action shall constitute a crime of aforethought.
2. Other qualifying mark of the crime of aforethought shall fall within a person's responsibility only in case this mark was part of the intention of this person.

Article 12. Crime Categories

1. In accordance with the maximum term of imprisonment provided as punishment by the article or part of the article of this Code, there shall be three categories of crime:
 - a) misdemeanor;

2. The court in compliance with the legislation of Georgia may change the type of institution determined under the sentence on sentence execution.

CHAPTER XI. SENTENCING

Article 53. General Principles of Sentencing

1. The court shall award a fair sentence against a criminal within the bounds prescribed under the relevant article of the Private Part of this Code and in consideration of the provisions of the General Part of the same Code. A more severe type of sentence may be awarded only in case the less severe type of sentence fails to insure the fulfilment of the purpose of the sentence.

2. A more severe sentence than the one prescribed under the relevant article of the Private Part of this Code may be awarded in accordance with the accumulated crimes and accumulated sentences as provided by Article 59 and 60 of the same Code. The basis for awarding a more lenient sentence than the one provided under the relevant article of the Private Part is determined by Article 55 of this Code.

3. When awarding a sentence, the court shall take into consideration the extenuating and aggravating circumstances of the crime, in particular, the motive and purpose of the crime, illegal will demonstrated in the action, character and extent of breach of obligations, manner of implementing the action, method employed and illegal consequence, past life of the criminal, his/her personal and economic conditions, behaviour after the action, especially willingness to effect restitution, reconcile with the victim.

4. If the article or part of the article of the Private Part of this Code provides for the extenuating and aggravating circumstances as Corpus Delicti, the same circumstance shall not be taken into consideration when awarding a sentence.

Article 54. Sentencing in Case of Extenuating Circumstances

1. If after perpetrating the crime the criminal appears and pleads guilty, acts in manner conducive to the detection of the crime and there are no aggravating circumstances, the term or extent of the crime shall in no way exceed three fourth of the maximum term for the most severe crime provided under the relevant article or part of article of the Private Part of this Code.

Article 55. Awarding More Lenient Sentence Than Allowed by Law

If there is a special mitigating circumstance, the court may, in consideration of the personality of the criminal, award a sentence beyond the lowest limit of the extent of sentence determined under the relevant article of this Code, or a more lenient sentence.

Article 56. Awarding Sentence for Incomplete Crime

1. When awarding a sentence for incomplete crime, consideration shall be given to the circumstances due to which the crime was not perpetrated to the end.

2. The term or extent of the sentence for staging the crime shall in no way exceed a half of the maximum term or extent of the most severe sentence prescribed for completed crimes under the relevant article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code.

3. The term or extent of the sentence for the attempted crime shall in no way exceed three fourth of the maximum term or extent of the most severe sentence prescribed for completed crimes under the relevant article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code.

4. Life imprisonment shall in no way be awarded for the staging of crime or attempted crime.

Article 57. Awarding Sentence for Complicity in or Perpetration of Crime

1. When awarding a sentence for complicity in or perpetration of the crime, consideration shall be given to the actual character and quality of the person's participation, the importance of the complicity in attaining the goal of the crime as well as its influence on the character and quality of the incurred or possible damage.

2. The extenuating or aggravating circumstance, which shall be applied to one of the accomplice or perpetrator, shall be taken into consideration only when awarding a sentence against this accomplice or perpetrator.

Article 58. Awarding Sentence in Case of Recidivism

1. In case of awarding a sentence for recidivism, dangerous recidivism or especially dangerous recidivism, consideration shall be given to the quantity and gravity of previously committed crimes, circumstances due to which the precautionary effect of the previously awarded sentences proved to be insufficient, as well as the gravity of the newly perpetrated crime.

2. The term of the sentence in case of recidivism shall in no way fall short of the half of the maximum term of the most severe punishment prescribed for perpetrated crime under the relevant article or part of the article of this Code, in case of dangerous recidivism - two thirds, in case of especially dangerous recidivism - three fourths.

3. If the article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code refers to the previous conviction as the qualifying sign of the crime, as well as in case of special extenuating circumstances prescribed under Article 55 of this Code, when awarding a sentence for recidivism, dangerous recidivism or especially dangerous recidivism, the rule prescribed in Paragraph 2 of this article shall not be applied.

Article 59. Awarding Sentence in Case of Cumulative Crime

1. In case of cumulative crime the sentence shall be awarded for each particular crime.

2. If the cumulative crime consists of misdemeanours only, a more severe punishment shall overlap a less severe one when awarding a final sentence.

3. If the cumulative crime consists of dangerous or especially dangerous crimes, the punishments prescribed for this crime shall be accumulated partly or in whole when awarding a final sentence. In addition, the term of the imprisonment for a particular term awarded as a final sentence shall in no way be in excess of twenty-five years.

4. If the cumulative crime consists of a misdemeanour or a dangerous crime, or a misdemeanour and especially dangerous crime, a more severe punishment shall overlap a less severe one when awarding a final sentence or the punishments prescribed for these crimes shall be accumulated partly or in whole. In addition, the term of the awarded final sentence shall in no way be in excess of twenty years.

5. In case of cumulative crime, additional punishment may as well be awarded along with the main punishment. The term or extent of the final additional punishment awarded in case of partial or total accumulation shall in no way exceed the maximum term or extent prescribed for the foregoing type of punishment under General Part of this Code.

6. The sentence shall be awarded under the same rule if, after delivering the judgment, it was established that the convict is at fault with the other crime, too, which he/she had committed before the sentence was delivered with respect to the first case. On this occasion, the final sentence shall be the sentence, which is served under the first sentence fully or partially.

Article 60. Awarding Sentence in Case of Cumulative Conviction

1. When awarding a sentence in case of cumulative conviction, the court shall sum up the sentence of the last conviction the unserved part of the sentence of the prior conviction in part or in whole.

2. The term or extent of the sentence awarded under cumulative conviction, if it is more lenient than imprisonment, shall in no way exceed the maximum term or extent prescribed for the foregoing type of punishment under General Part of this Code.

3. The term of imprisonment awarded as final sentence under cumulative conviction shall not be in excess of thirty years.

4. The final sentence awarded under cumulative conviction shall be longer than the sentence awarded for the newly committed crime as well as the unserved term of the sentence awarded under prior conviction.

5. The summing up of additional sentences in case of cumulative conviction shall be carried out in manner prescribed under Paragraph 2 of Article 62-e of this Code.

Article 61. Accumulation of Sentences

1. When partially or fully summing up sentences in case of cumulative crime or cumulative conviction, one day of imprisonment shall be convertible into:

- a) one day of jail sentence or one day of placement into a disciplinary military unit;
- b) two days of restriction of freedom;
- c) three days of corrective labour or restriction of the service of a military;
- d) eight hours of socially useful labour.

2. Fine or deprivation of the right to occupy a position or pursue a particular activity, in case of their adding to restriction of freedom, jail sentence, placement into a disciplinary military unit or imprisonment, shall be applied independently.

Article 62. Computation of Term of the Sentence and Credit for Service of Sentence

1. The term of deprivation of the right to occupy a position or pursue a particular activity, corrective labour, restriction of the service of a military, restriction of freedom, jail sentence, placement into a disciplinary military unit and imprisonment shall be computed in months and years and the term of socially useful labour - in hours.

2. It is possible to compute the term of the sentence in days in case of changing and summing up of the sentence, as well as credit for the service of the sentence referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article.

3. The time of detention pending trial shall be included into the term of the sentence in manner hereinafter appearing: one day of detention - one day of imprisonment, placement into a disciplinary military unit; two days of restriction of freedom; three days of corrective labour or restriction of the service of a military; eight hours of socially useful labour.

4. The time of detention before the effectiveness of the judgment awarded for the crime perpetrated abroad, as well as the time of serving imprisonment prescribed by the judgment in case of extraditing under Article 6 of this Code shall be credited as follows: one day for one day.

5. If fine or deprivation of the right to occupy a position or pursue a particular activity was awarded as main punishment against the person held in detention pending trial, the court shall commute the awarded sentence in consideration of the time of detention or shall completely release such person from it.

CHAPTER XII. CONDITIONAL SENTENCE

Article 63. Basis for Conditional Sentencing

1. If the convict can be corrected without serving the awarded sentence of corrective labour, restriction of freedom, placement into a disciplinary military unit, jailing or imprisonment, the court shall rule that the awarded sentence be deemed to be conditional.

2. In case of conditional sentencing the court shall consider the basis for sentencing and expected effect of the conditional sentence.

3. Additional punishment may be awarded in case of conditional sentencing.

Article 64. Probation Period

In the existence of the basis prescribed under Article 64 of this Code, the court shall award a probation period throughout which the convict must not commit any new crime and must fulfil the obligation assigned. In case of awarding the imprisonment up to one year or any other lighter sentence, the probation period must be no less than one year and not in excess of three years; in case of awarding imprisonment up to five years - no less than one and not in excess of six years.

Article 65. Assigning Obligation

In case of conditional sentence, if there is any basis therefore, that court may assign the convict to meet certain obligations: not to change permanent place of residence without the permit of the probation service, not to establish relations with someone who may engage him/her in anti-public activities, not to visit a particular place, to support the family materially, to take a rehabilitation course to treat oneself from alcoholism, drug addiction, toxin addiction or venereal disease. The court may assign the convict any other obligation to the extent it is conducive to his/her correction.

Article 66. Control and Relief

1. The probation service shall exercise control and relief over the probationer. This service shall see to the person's fulfilment of the obligations assigned and in case of their non-fulfilment will notify the court forthwith thereon.

2. The commanding authority of the military unit shall exercise the function referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article in relation to a military probationer.

3. During the probation period the court may, at the petition of the body exercising control and relief over the probationer, fully or partly annul the obligation assigned to the probationer or assign new obligation thereto.

Article 67. Nullification of Conditional Sentence and Extension of Probation Period

1. If, after the expiration of no less than half of the probation period, the probationer proves that he/she is corrected, the court may, at the petition of the body exercising control and relief over the probationer, fully or partly quash the conditional sentence and remove the conviction of the convict from the record.
2. If the probationer has avoided the fulfilment of the obligations assigned and has violated public order for which he/she was subject to administrative punishment, the court may, at the petition of the body referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article, extend the probation period by at most one year.
3. If during the probation period the probationer systematically or maliciously refused to fulfil the obligations assigned, the court may, at the petition of the body referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article, rule that the conditional sentence be quashed and the sentence prescribed by the conviction be administered.
4. If during the probation period the probationer committed a crime of negligence, the question whether to quash the conditional sentence or leave it in force shall be settled by the court.
5. If during the probation period the probationer committed a crime of aforethought, the court shall quash the conditional sentence and award a sentence against the convict in manner prescribed under Article 61 of this Code. The same rule shall be applied to sentencing in case referred to in Paragraph 4 of this article.

SECTION FOUR. RELEASE FROM CRIMINAL LIABILITY AND SENTENCE

CHAPTER XIII. RELEASE FROM CRIMINAL LIABILITY

Article 68. Release from Criminal Liability Due to Effective Confession

1. The person who has for the first time committed a crime for which the maximum sentence prescribed by the article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code does not exceed two years of imprisonment, may be released from criminal liability if after the crime he/she voluntarily appeared and confessed to the crime, acted in manner conducive to the exposure of the crime and undid the damage.
2. The person who has committed another type of crime, may, in case of the circumstances referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article, be released from criminal liability if it is prescribed under the relevant article of the Special Part of this Code.

Article 69. Release from Criminal Liability Due to Reconciliation with Victim

The person who has for the first time committed a crime for which the maximum sentence prescribed by the article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code does not exceed two years of imprisonment, may be released from criminal liability if he/she reconciled with the victim.

Article 70. Release from Criminal Liability Due to the Change of Circumstances

The wrongdoer may be released from criminal liability if it is established that the action is no longer illegal due to the change of circumstances.

Article 71. Release from Criminal Liability Due to Expiration of the Limitation

1. The person shall be released from criminal liability if:
 - a) two years have passed since the perpetration of the crime for which the maximum sentence prescribed by the article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code does not exceed two years of imprisonment;
 - b) six years have passed since the perpetration of any misdemeanour;
 - c) ten years have passed since the perpetration of any grave offence;
 - d) twenty-five years have passed since the perpetration of any especially grave offence.
2. The term of limitation shall cover the period from the day of wrongdoing before the effectiveness of the conviction. In case of committing another crime, the term of limitation shall be computed for each particular crime.
3. The flow of the limitation shall drop if the criminal escapes from the investigation or the court. On such occasion, the limitation shall be resumed upon the apprehension or appearance in court with the confession of guilt.
4. The question whether applies the limitation or not to the person convicted of life imprisonment, shall be settled by the court. If the court rules that it is impossible to apply the limitation, life imprisonment shall be commuted to imprisonment for a particular term.
5. The limitation shall not be applied in cases provided by the International Treaty of Georgia.
6. The flow of the limitation shall drop as long as the person is protected by immunity.

CHAPTER XIV. RELEASE FROM PUNISHMENT

Article 72. Parole

1. The person serving a sentence of corrective labour, restriction of the service of a military, restriction of freedom, placement into a disciplinary military unit, jailing or imprisonment, may be conditionally released before the expiration of the term if the court holds that completion of the sentence is no longer necessary for the correction of such person. Furthermore, the person may be fully or partly released from the additional sentence.
2. In case of parole, the court may assign the convict the obligations prescribed under Article 65 of this Code, which the person must fulfil throughout the incomplete term of the sentence.
3. Parole shall be granted only in case the convict has actually served:
 - a) no less than half of the sentence awarded for a misdemeanour;
 - b) no less than two thirds of the sentence awarded for any grave offence;
 - c) no less than three fourths of the sentence awarded for any especially grave offence;
 - d) three fourths of the sentence awarded to the person previously released on parole but the parole was quashed under Paragraph 6 of this article.
4. The actually term of imprisonment served by the convict shall not fall short of six months.
5. The control over the behaviour of the person released on parole shall be exercised by the probation service or relevant authority and over the behaviour of a military serviceman - by the commanding authority of the military unit.
6. If, during the incomplete term, the convict:
 - a) maliciously avoided the fulfilment of the obligations assigned thereto for the release on parole, the court may, at the petition of the bodies referred to in Paragraph 5 of this article rule that parole be quashed and the incomplete term of the sentence be served;
 - b) committed a crime of negligence, the question on parole or leaving the sentence in force shall be settled by the court;
 - c) committed a crime of aforethought, the court may award a sentence in accordance with the rule prescribed under Article 61-e of this

Code. The same rule shall be applied to sentencing for the perpetration of the crime of negligence if the court rescinds the parole.

7. The convict may be released from life imprisonment if he/she actually served twenty-five years of imprisonment and if the court holds that it is no longer necessary for the convict to continue serving the sentence.

Article 73. Commutation of Unserved Term

1. The court may replace the unserved prison term of the person convicted of misdemeanour with a less severe sentence in consideration of the convict's behaviour. Furthermore, the convict may be fully or partly released from serving the additional sentence.
2. Commutation of the unserved term may be admissible only in case the convict has actually served at least one third of the awarded term of the sentence.

Article 74. Release from Punishment Due to Illness

1. The person who after the perpetration of the crime fell mentally ill so that he/she is no longer able to comprehend the actual character or illegitimacy of his/her action or guide it, shall be released from punishment and the one who is serving a sentence shall be released from further serving it. Coercive measure of medical character may be awarded to such persons.
2. The court may release the person from punishment who after committing the crime fell ill with some serious disease that hinders the service of the sentence.
3. If the military serviceman who is serving a sentence in a disciplinary military unit, fell ill so that became unfit for military service, he shall be released from further serving of the sentence or the unserved term may be commuted to a less severe sentence.
4. The persons referred to in Paragraph 1 or 2 of this article may, in case of recovery, be subject to criminal liability and sentenced if the limitation terms prescribed under Article 71-e and 76-e have not expired.

Article 75. Suspension of the Sentence for Pregnant Woman or Mother of Child under Seven

1. If a pregnant woman or mother of the child under seven years is not sentenced to more than five years of imprisonment for a grave or especially grave offence, the court may suspend the sentence till the child becomes seven years old.
2. If the convict repudiates her child or dispenses with raising the child after having been prejudiced by the probation service, the court may, at the petition of this service, rescind the suspension of the sentence and send the convict to the place prescribed by the conviction to serve the sentence.
3. When the child reaches the age of seven, the court shall release the convict from the unserved term or shall commute the unserved term to a less severe sentence or shall make a decision on returning the convict to the relevant institution for serving the unserved term of the sentence.
4. If the convict commits a new offence during the suspension of the sentence, the court shall sentence her in manner prescribed under Article 61-e of this Code.

Article 76. Release from the Sentence Due to Limitation of Judgment of Conviction

1. The convict shall be released from serving a sentence if the effective judgment of conviction was not executed within the below given time-frames:
 - a) within two years after committing the crime for which the maximum sentence prescribed by the article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code does not exceed two years of imprisonment;
 - b) in case of convicting for another misdemeanour within six years;
 - c) in case of convicting for any grave offence within six years;
 - d) in case of convicting for any especially grave offence within fifteen years.
2. The flow of the limitation shall be dropped if the convict has avoided to serve the sentence. On such occasion, The flow of the limitation shall be resumed upon the apprehension or appearing with a confession of guilt. The term passed since the evasion of the sentence shall be included into the limitation.
3. The question whether the limitation must be applied to the person convicted of life imprisonment or not shall be settled by the court. If the court holds that the application of the limitation is inadmissible, life imprisonment shall be commuted to imprisonment for a particular term.
4. Limitation shall not be applied in cases provided by the International Treaty of Georgia.

CHAPTER XV. AMNESTY, PARDON, PREVIOUS CONVICTION

Article 77. Amnesty

1. Amnesty shall be declared by the Parliament of Georgia toward individually unspecified persons.

SECTION SIX. TYPES OF COERCIVE MEASURE OF MEDICAL CHARACTER, BASIS AND RULE OF THEIR APPLICATION CHAPTER XVIII. COERCIVE MEASURE OF MEDICAL CHARACTER

Article 101. Basis for awarding Coercive Measure of Medical Character

1. The court may award a coercive measure of medical character if:

- a) a person has committed the action provided by the Special Part of this Code in the Condition of release from responsibility;
- b) a crime is perpetrated in the condition of diminished responsibility;
- c) a person became mentally ill after committing the offence, which makes it impossible to award or execute a sentence;
- d) it is necessary to treat a person for alcoholism or drug abuse.

2. The coercive measure of medical character shall be applied to the person referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article to the extent his/her mental condition poses a threat to such person per se or others or otherwise carries the threat of some other substantial prejudice.

3. The rule to administer the coercive measure of medical character shall be determined in compliance with the legislation of Georgia.

4. The court may remit the relevant material on the person referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article who is not dangerous with respect to mental condition to a healthcare authority that will settle the question related to the treatment or sending thereof to a psychoneurologic institution.

Article 102. Types of Coercive Measures of Medical Character

1. The court may award the following coercive measures of medical nature:

- a) dispensary mental treatment;
- b) placement into a mental hospital under ordinary supervision;
- c) placement into a mental hospital under increased supervision;
- d) placement into a mental hospital under intensive supervision;
- e) placement into a specialized necrological medical-prophylactic institution under increased supervision.

2. The court may, for wrongdoing in the condition of full responsibility, award a coercive measure of medical character along with the sentence against the convict who is in need of treatment from alcoholism, drug abuse or mental disease not excluding full responsibility.

Article 103. Dispensary Mental Treatment

Dispensary mental treatment may be awarded to the extent provided under Article 101-e of this Code if it is not necessary to place a person in a mental hospital.

Article 104. Coercive Treatment in Mental Hospital

1. Coercive treatment in a mental hospital may be awarded to the extent provided under Article 101-e of this Code if the character and gravity of the mental disease calls for the conditions of treatment, care, living and supervision that may be administered exclusively in a mental hospital.
2. Coercive treatment in a mental hospital under ordinary but not under increased supervision may be awarded to the one who due to mental condition is in need of treatment and supervision in a hospital.
3. Coercive treatment in a mental hospital under increased supervision may be awarded to the one who due to mental condition is in need of constant supervision.
4. Coercive treatment in a mental hospital under intensive supervision may be awarded to the one who due to mental condition poses a special threat to oneself and others and is in need of constant and intensive supervision.

Article 105. Extension, Replacement or Termination of Coercive Measure of Medical Character

1. The court shall extend, replace or terminate coercive measure of medical character at the petition of the administration of the institution carrying out coercive treatment, on the basis of the opinion submitted by the Psychiatrists' Commission.
2. The one awarded with coercive measure of medical nature shall for at least six months be examined by the Psychiatrists' Commission to decide whether there is any basis for filing the petition in court for the termination or replacement of such measure. If there is no such basis, the administration of the institution carrying out coercive treatment shall submit the opinion to the court on the extension of the coercive treatment. The coercive treatment may firstly be extended after the expiration of six months upon the beginning of the administration of the coercive measure of medical character and thereafter - annually.
3. The court shall replace the coercive measure of medical character if the change in person's mental condition allows to discontinue the application of the previously prescribed measures or prescribe any other necessary measure of medical character.
4. In case the coercive treatment in a mental hospital is discontinued, the court may transfer the relevant materials on the person under treatment to a healthcare authority that will settle the question related to the treatment or sending thereof to a psychoneurologic institution as determined by the healthcare legislation.

Article 106. Credit for Period of Application of Coercive Measure of Medical Character

The period during which the person was prescribed to undergo treatment in a mental hospital due post-crime mental disease, shall, in case of sentencing or resumption of its execution, be credited for the term of the sentence as hereinafter appearing: one day of being in a mental hospital - one day of imprisonment.

Article 107. Coercive Measure of Medical Character Related to Execution of Sentence

1. In cases provided by Paragraph 2 of Article 104-e hereof, coercive measure of medical character shall be administered in the place of serving imprisonment and in case of other sentences - in the healthcare institution rendering mental assistance.
2. If the convict's mental condition has changed to the extent it is necessary to treat him/her in a mental hospital, the convict shall be placed in the mental hospital or in any other medical institution in compliance with the principle and rule determined under the healthcare legislation.
3. The period of being in the institution referred to in Paragraph 2 of this article shall be credited for the term of service of the sentence. If it is not necessary to further treat the convict in the foregoing institution, such convict shall be discharged in manner prescribed under the healthcare legislation.
4. The court on the basis of the opinion submitted by the Psychiatrists' Commission shall settle the question related to the application of the coercive measure of medical character.

The question of criminal liability of such persons shall be settled in manner and to the extent permitted by the international law.

SECTION TWO. CRIME

CHAPTER III. BASIS FOR CRIMINAL LIABILITY, CRIME CATEGORIES

Article 7. Basis for Criminal Legislation

1. The basis for the criminal responsibility shall be a crime, i.e. the illegal and disorderly actions provided under thus Code.
2. Crime shall not be the action that, although formally carrying the signs of crime, has not produced, for minor importance, the prejudice which would necessitate the criminal liability of its perpetrator, or has not created the threat of such prejudice.

Article 8. Casual Relationship

1. If under the relevant article hereof the crime is deemed as ended only in case the action has given rise to illegal result or has created a specific threat of producing such result, it shall be necessary to establish a casual relationship between the action and the result or threat.
2. Casual relationship exists if the action constituted a sine qua non for the illegal result or specific threat provided under the relevant article hereof without which this time such result would not have been produced or such threat would not have been created.
3. Inaction shall be deemed as sine qua non for producing the illegal result or for creating specific threat provided under the relevant article hereof in case the person was assigned special legal obligation of the action, had possibility for such action and the result would have been forestalled by obligatory and possible action.

Article 9. Crime of Aforethought

1. Crime of aforethought shall be the action that is perpetrated with direct or indirect intention.
2. The action shall be perpetrated with direct intention if the wrongdoer was aware of the illegitimacy of his/her action, foresaw the possibility for the arrival of the illegal consequence and wished to have this consequence, or foresaw the inevitability of the realization of such consequence.
3. The action shall be perpetrated with indirect intention if the wrongdoer was aware of the illegitimacy of his/her action, foresaw the possibility for the arrival of the illegal consequence, did not wish to have this consequence but deliberately allowed for or was negligent to deal with the arrival of such consequence.

Article 10. Crime of Negligence

1. The action shall be deemed to be crime of negligence if it is perpetrated through presumption or negligence.
2. The action shall be perpetrated through presumption if the person was aware of the action forbidden under the norms of foreseeing, foresaw the possibility for the illegal consequence but had unfounded hope that he/she would avoid this consequence.

3. The action is committed through negligence if the person was aware of the action forbidden under the norms of foreseeing, did not foresee the possibility for the illegal consequence though he/she was obliged to and could foresee it.

4. The action committed by negligence shall be deemed to be offence only in case it is referred to in the relevant article of this Code.

Article 11. Liability for Crime of Aforethought with Attendant Consequence

1. If criminal law provides for the augment of punishment for the arrival of the attendant consequence that fell out of the criminal's purpose, such augment shall be permitted only in case a person carried out this consequence through negligence. Such action shall constitute a crime of aforethought.

2. Other qualifying mark of the crime of aforethought shall fall within a person's responsibility only in case this mark was part of the intention of this person.

Article 12. Crime Categories

1. In accordance with the maximum term of imprisonment provided as punishment by the article or part of the article of this Code, there shall be three categories of crime:

Article 57. Awarding Sentence for Complicity in or Perpetration of Crime

1. When awarding a sentence for complicity in or perpetration of the crime, consideration shall be given to the actual character and quality of the person's participation, the importance of the complicity in attaining the goal of the crime as well as its influence on the character and quality of the incurred or possible damage.
2. The extenuating or aggravating circumstance, which shall be applied to one of the accomplice or perpetrator, shall be taken into consideration only when awarding a sentence against this accomplice or perpetrator.

Article 58. Awarding Sentence in Case of Recidivism

1. In case of awarding a sentence for recidivism, dangerous recidivism or especially dangerous recidivism, consideration shall be given to the quantity and gravity of previously committed crimes, circumstances due to which the precautionary effect of the previously awarded sentences proved to be insufficient, as well as the gravity of the newly perpetrated crime.
2. The term of the sentence in case of recidivism shall in no way fall short of the half of the maximum term of the most severe punishment prescribed for perpetrated crime under the relevant article or part of the article of this Code, in case of dangerous recidivism - two thirds, in case of especially dangerous recidivism - three fourths.
3. If the article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code refers to the previous conviction as the qualifying sign of the crime, as well as in case of special extenuating circumstances prescribed under Article 55 of this Code, when awarding a sentence for recidivism, dangerous recidivism or especially dangerous recidivism, the rule prescribed in Paragraph 2 of this article shall not be applied.

Article 59. Awarding Sentence in Case of Cumulative Crime

1. In case of cumulative crime the sentence shall be awarded for each particular crime.
2. If the cumulative crime consists of misdemeanours only, a more severe punishment shall overlap a less severe one when awarding a final sentence.
3. If the cumulative crime consists of dangerous or especially dangerous crimes, the punishments prescribed for this crime shall be accumulated partly or in whole when awarding a final sentence. In addition, the term of the imprisonment for a particular term awarded as a final sentence shall in no way be in excess of twenty-five years.
4. If the cumulative crime consists of a misdemeanour or a dangerous crime, or a misdemeanour and especially dangerous crime, a more severe punishment shall overlap a less severe one when awarding a final sentence or the punishments prescribed for these crimes shall be accumulated partly or in whole. In addition, the term of the awarded final sentence shall in no way be in excess of twenty years.
5. In case of cumulative crime, additional punishment may as well be awarded along with the main punishment. The term or extent of the final additional punishment awarded in case of partial or total accumulation shall in no way exceed the maximum term or extent prescribed for the foregoing type of punishment under General Part of this Code.
6. The sentence shall be awarded under the same rule if, after delivering the judgment, it was established that the convict is at fault with the other crime, too, which he/she had committed before the sentence was delivered with respect to the first case. On this occasion, the final sentence shall be the sentence, which is served under the first sentence fully or partially.

Article 60. Awarding Sentence in Case of Cumulative Conviction

1. When awarding a sentence in case of cumulative conviction, the court shall sum up the sentence of the last conviction the unserved part of the sentence of the prior conviction in part or in whole.
2. The term or extent of the sentence awarded under cumulative conviction, if it is more lenient than imprisonment, shall in no way exceed the maximum term or extent prescribed for the foregoing type of punishment under General Part of this Code.
3. The term of imprisonment awarded as final sentence under cumulative conviction shall not be in excess of thirty years.
4. The final sentence awarded under cumulative conviction shall be longer than the sentence awarded for the newly committed crime as well as the unserved term of the sentence awarded under prior conviction.
5. The summing up of additional sentences in case of cumulative conviction shall be carried out in manner prescribed under Paragraph 2 of Article 62-e of this Code.

Article 61. Accumulation of Sentences

1. When partially or fully summing up sentences in case of cumulative crime or cumulative conviction, one day of imprisonment shall be convertible into:
 - a) one day of jail sentence or one day of placement into a disciplinary military unit;
 - b) two days of restriction of freedom;
 - c) three days of corrective labour or restriction of the service of a military;
 - d) eight hours of socially useful labour.
2. Fine or deprivation of the right to occupy a position or pursue a particular activity, in case of their adding to restriction of freedom, jail sentence, placement into a disciplinary military unit or imprisonment, shall be applied independently.

Article 62. Computation of Term of the Sentence and Credit for Service of Sentence

1. The term of deprivation of the right to occupy a position or pursue a particular activity, corrective labour, restriction of the service of a military, restriction of freedom, jail sentence, placement into a disciplinary military unit and imprisonment shall be computed in months and years and the term of socially useful labour - in hours.
2. It is possible to compute the term of the sentence in days in case of changing and summing up of the sentence, as well as credit for the service of the sentence referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article.
3. The time of detention pending trial shall be included into the term of the sentence in manner hereinafter appearing: one day of detention - one day of imprisonment, placement into a disciplinary military unit; two days of restriction of freedom; three days of corrective labour or restriction of the service of a military; eight hours of socially useful labour.
4. The time of detention before the effectiveness of the judgment awarded for the crime perpetrated abroad, as well as the time of serving imprisonment prescribed by the judgment in case of extraditing under Article 6 of this Code shall be credited as follows: one day for one day.
5. If fine or deprivation of the right to occupy a position or pursue a particular activity was awarded as main punishment against the person held in detention pending trial, the court shall commute the awarded sentence in consideration of the time of detention or shall completely release such person from it.

CHAPTER XII. CONDITIONAL SENTENCE

Article 63. Basis for Conditional Sentencing

1. If the convict can be corrected without serving the awarded sentence of corrective labour, restriction of freedom, placement into a disciplinary military unit, jailing or imprisonment, the court shall rule that the awarded sentence be deemed to be conditional.
2. In case of conditional sentencing the court shall consider the basis for sentencing and expected effect of the conditional sentence.
3. Additional punishment may be awarded in case of conditional sentencing.

Article 64. Probation Period

In the existence of the basis prescribed under Article 64 of this Code, the court shall award a probation period throughout which the convict must not commit any new crime and must fulfil the obligation assigned. In case of awarding the imprisonment up to one year or any other lighter sentence, the probation period must be no less than one year and not in excess of three years; in case of awarding imprisonment up to five years - no less than one and not in excess of six years.

Article 65. Assigning Obligation

In case of conditional sentence, if there is any basis therefore, that court may assign the convict to meet certain obligations: not to change permanent place of residence without the permit of the probation service, not to establish relations with someone who may engage him/her in anti-public activities, not to visit a particular place, to support the family materially, to take a rehabilitation course to treat oneself from alcoholism, drug addiction, toxin addiction or venereal disease. The court may assign the convict any other obligation to the extent it is conducive to his/her correction.

Article 66. Control and Relief

1. The probation service shall exercise control and relief over the probationer. This service shall see to the person's fulfilment of the obligations assigned and in case of their non-fulfilment will notify the court forthwith thereon.
2. The commanding authority of the military unit shall exercise the function referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article in relation to a military probationer.
3. During the probation period the court may, at the petition of the body exercising control and relief over the probationer, fully or partly annul the obligation assigned to the probationer or assign new obligation thereto.

Article 67. Nullification of Conditional Sentence and Extension of Probation Period

1. If, after the expiration of no less than half of the probation period, the probationer proves that he/she is corrected, the court may, at the petition of the body exercising control and relief over the probationer, fully or partly quash the conditional sentence and remove the conviction of the convict from the record.
2. If the probationer has avoided the fulfilment of the obligations assigned and has violated public order for which he/she was subject to administrative punishment, the court may, at the petition of the body referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article, extend the probation period by at most one year.
3. If during the probation period the probationer systematically or maliciously refused to fulfil the obligations assigned, the court may, at the petition of the body referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article, rule that the conditional sentence be quashed and the sentence prescribed by the conviction be administered.
4. If during the probation period the probationer committed a crime of negligence, the question whether to quash the conditional sentence or leave it in force shall be settled by the court.
5. If during the probation period the probationer committed a crime of aforethought, the court shall quash the conditional sentence and award a sentence against the convict in manner prescribed under Article 61 of this Code. The same rule shall be applied to sentencing in case referred to in Paragraph 4 of this article.

SECTION FOUR. RELEASE FROM CRIMINAL LIABILITY AND SENTENCE

CHAPTER XIII. RELEASE FROM CRIMINAL LIABILITY

Article 68. Release from Criminal Liability Due to Effective Confession

1. The person who has for the first time committed a crime for which the maximum sentence prescribed by the article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code does not exceed two years of imprisonment, may be released from criminal liability if after the crime he/she voluntarily appeared and confessed to the crime, acted in manner conducive to the exposure of the crime and undid the damage.

2. The person who has committed another type of crime, may, in case of the circumstances referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article, be released from criminal liability if it is prescribed under the relevant article of the Special Part of this Code.

Article 69. Release from Criminal Liability Due to Reconciliation with Victim

The person who has for the first time committed a crime for which the maximum sentence prescribed by the article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code does not exceed two years of imprisonment, may be released from criminal liability if he/she reconciled with the victim.

Article 70. Release from Criminal Liability Due to the Change of Circumstances

The wrongdoer may be released from criminal liability if it is established that the action is no longer illegal due to the change of circumstances.

Article 71. Release from Criminal Liability Due to Expiration of the Limitation

1. The person shall be released from criminal liability if:

- a) two years have passed since the perpetration of the crime for which the maximum sentence prescribed by the article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code does not exceed two years of imprisonment;
- b) six years have passed since the perpetration of any misdemeanour;
- c) ten years have passed since the perpetration of any grave offence;
- d) twenty-five years have passed since the perpetration of any especially grave offence.

2. The term of limitation shall cover the period from the day of wrongdoing before the effectiveness of the conviction. In case of committing another crime, the term of limitation shall be computed for each particular crime.

3. The flow of the limitation shall drop if the criminal escapes from the investigation or the court. On such occasion, the limitation shall be resumed upon the apprehension or appearance in court with the confession of guilt.

4. The question whether applies the limitation or not to the person convicted of life imprisonment, shall be settled by the court. If the court rules that it is impossible to apply the limitation, life imprisonment shall be commuted to imprisonment for a particular term.

5. The limitation shall not be applied in cases provided by the International Treaty of Georgia.

6. The flow of the limitation shall drop as long as the person is protected by immunity.

CHAPTER XIV. RELEASE FROM PUNISHMENT

Article 72. Parole

1. The person serving a sentence of corrective labour, restriction of the service of a military, restriction of freedom, placement into a disciplinary military unit, jailing or imprisonment, may be conditionally released before the expiration of the term if the court holds that completion of the sentence is no longer necessary for the correction of such person. Furthermore, the person may be fully or partly released from the additional sentence.

2. In case of parole, the court may assign the convict the obligations prescribed under Article 65 of this Code, which the person must fulfil throughout the incomplete term of the sentence.

3. Parole shall be granted only in case the convict has actually served:

- a) no less than half of the sentence awarded for a misdemeanour;
- b) no less than two thirds of the sentence awarded for any grave offence;
- c) no less than three fourths of the sentence awarded for any especially grave offence;
- d) three fourths of the sentence awarded to the person previously released on parole but the parole was quashed under Paragraph 6 of this article.

4. The actually term of imprisonment served by the convict shall not fall short of six months.

5. The control over the behaviour of the person released on parole shall be exercised by the probation service or relevant authority and over the behaviour of a military serviceman - by the commanding authority of the military unit.

6. If, during the incomplete term, the convict:

- a) maliciously avoided the fulfilment of the obligations assigned thereto for the release on parole, the court may, at the petition of the bodies referred to in Paragraph 5 of this article rule that parole be quashed and the incomplete term of the sentence be served;
- b) committed a crime of negligence, the question on parole or leaving the sentence in force shall be settled by the court;
- c) committed a crime of aforethought, the court may award a sentence in accordance with the rule prescribed under Article 61-e of this Code. The same rule shall be applied to sentencing for the perpetration of the crime of negligence if the court rescinds the parole.

7. The convict may be released from life imprisonment if he/she actually served twenty-five years of imprisonment and if the court holds that it is no longer necessary for the convict to continue serving the sentence.

Article 73. Commutation of Unserved Term

1. The court may replace the unserved prison term of the person convicted of misdemeanour with a less severe sentence in consideration of the convict's behaviour. Furthermore, the convict may be fully or partly released from serving the additional sentence.

2. Commutation of the unserved term may be admissible only in case the convict has actually served at least one third of the awarded term of the sentence.

Article 74. Release from Punishment Due to Illness

1. The person who after the perpetration of the crime fell mentally ill so that he/she is no longer able to comprehend the actual character or illegitimacy of his/her action or guide it, shall be released from punishment and the one who is serving a sentence shall be released from further serving it. Coercive measure of medical character may be awarded to such persons.

2. The court may release the person from punishment who after committing the crime fell ill with some serious disease that hinders the service of the sentence.

3. If the military serviceman who is serving a sentence in a disciplinary military unit, fell ill so that became unfit for military service, he shall be released from further serving of the sentence or the unserved term may be commuted to a less severe sentence.

4. The persons referred to in Paragraph 1 or 2 of this article may, in case of recovery, be subject to criminal liability and sentenced if the limitation terms prescribed under Article 71-e and 76-e have not expired.

Article 75. Suspension of the Sentence for Pregnant Woman or Mother of Child under Seven

1. If a pregnant woman or mother of the child under seven years is not sentenced to more than five years of imprisonment for a grave or especially grave offence, the court may suspend the sentence till the child becomes seven years old.
2. If the convict repudiates her child or dispenses with raising the child after having been prejudiced by the probation service, the court may, at the petition of this service, rescind the suspension of the sentence and send the convict to the place prescribed by the conviction to serve the sentence.
3. When the child reaches the age of seven, the court shall release the convict from the unserved term or shall commute the unserved term to a less severe sentence or shall make a decision on returning the convict to the relevant institution for serving the unserved term of the sentence.
4. If the convict commits a new offence during the suspension of the sentence, the court shall sentence her in manner prescribed under Article 61-e of this Code.

Article 76. Release from the Sentence Due to Limitation of Judgment of Conviction

1. The convict shall be released from serving a sentence if the effective judgment of conviction was not executed within the below given time-frames:
 - a) within two years after committing the crime for which the maximum sentence prescribed by the article or part of the article of the Special Part of this Code does not exceed two years of imprisonment;
 - b) in case of convicting for another misdemeanour within six years;
 - c) in case of convicting for any grave offence within six years;
 - d) in case of convicting for any especially grave offence within fifteen years.
2. The flow of the limitation shall be dropped if the convict has avoided to serve the sentence. On such occasion, The flow of the limitation shall be resumed upon the apprehension or appearing with a confession of guilt. The term passed since the evasion of the sentence shall be included into the limitation.
3. The question whether the limitation must be applied to the person convicted of life imprisonment or not shall be settled by the court. If the court holds that the application of the limitation is inadmissible, life imprisonment shall be commuted to imprisonment for a particular term.
4. Limitation shall not be applied in cases provided by the International Treaty of Georgia.

CHAPTER XV. AMNESTY, PARDON, PREVIOUS CONVICTION

Article 77. Amnesty

1. Amnesty shall be declared by the Parliament of Georgia toward individually unspecified persons.

Article 104. Coercive Treatment in Mental Hospital

1. Coercive treatment in a mental hospital may be awarded to the extent provided under Article 101-e of this Code if the character and gravity of the mental disease calls for the conditions of treatment, care, living and supervision that may be administered exclusively in a mental hospital.
2. Coercive treatment in a mental hospital under ordinary but not under increased supervision may be awarded to the one who due to mental condition is in need of treatment and supervision in a hospital.
3. Coercive treatment in a mental hospital under increased supervision may be awarded to the one who due to mental condition is in need of constant supervision.
4. Coercive treatment in a mental hospital under intensive supervision may be awarded to the one who due to mental condition poses a special threat to oneself and others and is in need of constant and intensive supervision.

Article 105. Extension, Replacement or Termination of Coercive Measure of Medical Character

1. The court shall extend, replace or terminate coercive measure of medical character at the petition of the administration of the institution carrying out coercive treatment, on the basis of the opinion submitted by the Psychiatrists' Commission.
2. The one awarded with coercive measure of medical nature shall for at least six months be examined by the Psychiatrists' Commission to decide whether there is any basis for filing the petition in court for the termination or replacement of such measure. If there is no such basis, the administration of the institution carrying out coercive treatment shall submit the opinion to the court on the extension of the coercive treatment. The coercive treatment may firstly be extended after the expiration of six months upon the beginning of the administration of the coercive measure of medical character and thereafter - annually.

3. The court shall replace the coercive measure of medical character if the change in person's mental condition allows to discontinue the application of the previously prescribed measures or prescribe any other necessary measure of medical character.

4. In case the coercive treatment in a mental hospital is discontinued, the court may transfer the relevant materials on the person under treatment to a healthcare authority that will settle the question related to the treatment or sending thereof to a psychoneurologic institution as determined by the healthcare legislation.

Article 106. Credit for Period of Application of Coercive Measure of Medical Character

The period during which the person was prescribed to undergo treatment in a mental hospital due post-crime mental disease, shall, in case of sentencing or resumption of its execution, be credited for the term of the sentence as hereinafter appearing: one day of being in a mental hospital - one day of imprisonment.

Article 107. Coercive Measure of Medical Character Related to Execution of Sentence

1. In cases provided by Paragraph 2 of Article 104-e hereof, coercive measure of medical character shall be administered in the place of serving imprisonment and in case of other sentences - in the healthcare institution rendering mental assistance.

2. If the convict's mental condition has changed to the extent it is necessary to treat him/her in a mental hospital, the convict shall be placed in the mental hospital or in any other medical institution in compliance with the principle and rule determined under the healthcare legislation.

3. The period of being in the institution referred to in Paragraph 2 of this article shall be credited for the term of service of the sentence. If it is not necessary to further treat the convict in the foregoing institution, such convict shall be discharged in manner prescribed under the healthcare legislation.

4. The court on the basis of the opinion submitted by the Psychiatrists' Commission shall settle the question related to the application of the coercive measure of medical character.
